

Bespoke Driver Training For Business Clients

DRIVERS DOMAIN UK[®]

Private & Fleet Driver Training For The UK

Introduction to Drivers Domain UK

Drivers Domain UK delivers fully bespoke driver training solutions to corporate clients across the United Kingdom. Our approach is professional, adaptable, and client-focused, underpinned by a genuine commitment to raising driving standards and promoting road safety nationwide.

All driver training courses are delivered by Driver and Vehicle Standards Agency (DVSA) driver trainers. Our nationwide network of trainers combines technical expertise with a passion for road safety, ensuring every course is informative, engaging, and tailored to the needs of drivers at all levels. By focusing on practical skills and the latest best practices, we provide training that is not only effective but also enjoyable and easy to apply in real-world driving situations.

Driving Courses and Services We Offer

Because our training is fully bespoke, we can deliver a driving course that's the perfect fit for every client. Whether you're a business managing a fleet or just one or two drivers, our courses are designed to provide maximum impact and value.

We regularly tailor driving courses by combining elements taken from different training sessions. This is important, as each driver is unique, we do not offer a simple, off-the-shelf course. Our range of courses currently includes:

- General car and van advanced/defensive driver training
- New employee induction training
- Van confidence training
- Post-RTC training for employees returning to a driving role
- Confidence driver training
- Speed awareness courses
- HGV driver training
- Free online risk assessments
- Road safety presentations
- More bespoke/specialist courses (road rage, phobia, high-risk etc.)

Course Durations

Our courses, which are road-based in the client's own vehicle, are either 3.5 hours or 7 hours. A 7-hour course can be split between two drivers, so one is trained from 9am to 12:30, and the other from 13:00 to 16:30.

Exact start times can be flexible.

Course Locations

We have over 250 tutors based around the UK. As a result, we can provide driver training in any location.

Course Insights – Which Applies To You?

Course Content:

We know each driver is different, and as such, the exact things we cover will vary. However, here is a general outline of the key points we cover during an on-road driver training session:

- Forward planning and observation
- Speed awareness
- Advanced cornering techniques
- Car or van control (gears, steering, foot controls, signals)
- Car handling dynamics and techniques
- Rules of the road
- Dealing with road rage
- Commentary driving
- Reversing and manoeuvres
- Dealing with adverse weather
- Dealing with emergency situations
- Vehicle stability and control
- Motorway driving
- Town and urban defensive driving
- Eco-safe driving (effective use of speed, gears, planning)
- Anticipation - Learning to see and not just look
- Understanding other road users and their intentions

Company-Wide Driver Training - When an organisation chooses to implement a driver training programme, whether for a select group of employees or for all staff who drive as part of their role, we work in partnership at every stage to ensure a smooth rollout.

The process begins with identifying who requires training and from which location or depot. We understand the challenges of coordinating busy teams and schedules, so we make the process as straightforward as possible.

To minimise disruption, we offer an extensive range of date options across UK-wide locations, with the ability to schedule months in advance if required or arrange on an ongoing ad-hoc basis. To simplify planning, we provide a company-specific training schedule detailing available dates by location. As the training progresses, it becomes a goto base to see who has had the training and when.

On the day of training, our trainers will deliver the sessions at the agreed sites and can contact organisers or the drivers directly beforehand if needed. Following completion of a course, a detailed driving assessment for each participant is compiled and emailed directly to the organiser.

Specific Drivers Only – In many cases, organisations require driver training for an individual team member. This may be a young or inexperienced driver, an employee who is required to drive a company vehicle, often a van, or someone whose driving has raised concerns, such as repeated minor incidents or negative feedback from the public. We can arrange individual training sessions quickly and efficiently. Each course is tailored to the driver's specific needs, ensuring the training is both relevant and helpful. Where appropriate, our trainer can also provide verbal feedback to a manager immediately after the session. Upon completion, a comprehensive driving assessment report is prepared and emailed directly to the organiser, giving clear insight into the driver's strengths, areas for improvement, and overall progress.

How We Score a Driver:

As part of the training, each driver is assessed across more than 20 key areas of driving, both before and after the course. Performance is rated on a scale from Excellent to Poor, providing a clear comparison of progress and highlighting specific areas for improvement. Alongside these scores, the instructor includes detailed, handwritten notes to give additional context and personalised feedback. In addition, every driver receives an overall road risk rating, from Low to High, offering a clear summary of their driving profile and level of risk.

Driving Tips:

We provide lots of tips and techniques for safer driving during our various driving courses. Below are a few examples to provide an insight into what we cover during our training, which have been provided by a number of our tutors across the UK.

Whether you book a course with us or not, these tips should help you enjoy safer driving:

“Female Security. Always reverse into parking bays and have car keys ready in hand rather than searching in the bag. Especially in dark car parks at night if travelling alone. Then lock the door from the inside for extra security.”

“When negotiating a roundabout, always look and, if possible, make eye contact with traffic coming on from the left. Also, look where they are steering, don’t rely on signals. Forward planning is forward-thinking.”

“Don’t follow the queue; lead the pack. On open roads, be a space maker and not a space invader (town driving). When it’s wet on the floor, count to four. (2- second rule).”

“Never place the vehicle somewhere that the eyes and brain haven’t been first – In relation to entry speed into bends/brows of hills, etc. Stopping within the distance that can be seen to be clear.”

“When driving on a motorway, drive in a check-board fashion to provide a 4-way escape route. Only pass a vehicle when you can clear the front of that vehicle, and not end up at the side of it, and in the case of large vehicles, their blind spot.”

“Roundabouts: Look to go, but prepare to stop. Meeting Traffic: If in doubt, chicken out.”

“As you cross the white line in front of you, you should be looking in the direction you are travelling. A good driver knows as much about what is happening behind him/her as they know about what’s happening in front.”

“Wondering whether your mental driving state at any particular time is appropriate? Take a moment to think if everyone around you were to be driving in the exact same style and manner as yourself, at the same speeds, with the same separation gaps, what would it be like? If you’re thinking along the lines of tense or frenzied, then it’s definitely time to make adjustments!”
